Our future depends on the mental health of our children. The National Institute on Mental Health states that one in 10 children suffer from a mental illness severe enough to effect development.

Our future depends on the mental health of our children. The National Institute on Mental Health states that one in 10 children suffers from a mental illness severe enough to affect development. Detection and intervention at an early stage is necessary to ensure our kids are growing up to be healthy, contributing members of society.

Environmental factors play an integral role in the mental health of our children, so any treatment for our children must incorporate the needs of the family. The most common issues facing children are attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, behavioral issues, adjustment disorder and learning disabilities.

Taking an active and continuous role in the behavioral health of our children can prevent many illnesses from developing and ensure their lifelong success.

Since 1875, ASPENPOINTE has empowered clients, enriched lives and embraced purpose through individual and family services in mental health, substance abuse, employment & career development, education, housing, jail diversion & reintegration, telephonic wellness, and provider network services.
