

ASPENPOINTE

DEAR ASPENPOINTE STAKEHOLDER,

At this time, millions of individuals across the country and within our own communities are experiencing pain, anger, and grief. As we watched the senseless killing of George Floyd, we are reminded of a long history of discrimination that, grievously, is still present in our communities today.

For over 100 years, AspenPointe has been a community partner that has stood for inclusivity in our mission to positively impact people's lives. Valuing the diverse experiences that shape who we are is at the heart of what we do. We stand as one with our employees, clients, and community partners who are part of the Black community in the fight against injustice, systemic racism, and inequality.

Please know this organization is a resource for you - stay safe, take care of yourself, and ask for help when needed. Everyone has a right to safety and personhood. I want to ensure that everyone at this organization feels protected during these times and I encourage everyone to create a space for employees who would like to share feelings, reactions, and reflections. Through this practice I hope that these conversations foster growth, development, and advancement to social impact that is needed in our world we live in. We remain committed to making a difference in the lives of people we serve, our community, and the belief that our individual and collective actions can make a difference.

Best,

Adam C. Roberts, MBA
